SERIOUS WATER FIGHT IMPENDS

Millard County Farmers Are Threatened With Litigation.

VAST INTERESTS INVOLVED

DEVELOPMENT OF THE REGION MAY BE RETARDED.

What may easily develop into one of the most expensive pieces of litigaion in the state of Utah will probably be the strange, though indirect result of the completion of the San Pedro railroad. Mining disputes have the repstation of being among the costliest and most unending sources of legal conflict, but fights over water, according to lawyers, go them one better. "Water and whiskey," according to an eminent authority, have been the cause more trouble than everything else

The immediate disputes in question involve the Deseret Irrigation company of Millard county and the owners of the old Swan Lake canal of the same locality and may seriously retard the development of this region.

For the past week attorneys from the east have been searching the records of the United States courts, o the United States land office and of the county records of Millard county to secure data for the expected suit. A dozen years back, as the record runs wealthy residents of the east were influeed to open and develop a vast tract of land in Millard county, south of Deseret in the vicinity of Clear lake. Appropriation was first made by them of all the surplus water from Sevier river, Including the winter and flood water Then an enormous reservoir of 7,67; acres, the largest known in the country, was constructed at an expense of $300,000. Dozens of engineers, thousands of teams, great quantities of ma-terial were employed through successive years. An intake canal four and a half miles long was built to convey water to the reservoir, and irrigation canals aggregating over twenty miles constructed to carry the water to every Panic Stops the Work.

Then came the panic of 1893 when the Union Pacific tore up its rails, re-moved the ties and abandoned the road bed south of Milford. Along with the abandonment of the through line to Los Angeles came orders to quit work on the Swan lake irrigation project. But not to lose ony of their rights and to preserve their property for further use the Swan lake people kept up neces-sary repairs and perfected their land and water titles at an additional cost of something like $50,000, continuing assessments of stockholders down to the present date. The complete devel-opment and reclamation of the large desert tract has been held in abeyance, pending the completion of the railroad to Los Angeles, of which the colonization project in Millard county was a necessary corollary.

Rival Scheme Is Started.

In the meantime, however, the set tlers around Oasis and Deseret con-ceived it a magnificent project to enlarge their water supply, and to that end projected a dam across the Sevier river at Sevier bridge, to impound the flood or winter waters. The Deseret Irrigation company started the con-struction of the dam at this site and appealed to the state board of land enterprise. The project was reported as denly confronted with the fact that all these waters had been appropriated by state board dropped the matter decid-ing that it did not want to be mixed the enterprise. But the farmers wen bankments. So the matter stood until the fight to preserve their water rights, obtained at such enormous expense.

TO BUY ASPHALT BEDS.

Council Committee Favors City Doing Its Own Paving.

The special committee of the city coun-il last night recommended the purchase by the city from W. G. Nebeker of two asphalt beds at Thistle for $5,000, of which $500 is to be used in surveying the property and securing a United States patent on it. Councilman A. J. Davis was the only objector.

Was filed.

The finance committee signed its approval of a board bill of $56.10 for keeping little Elmer Rose 118 days by the Children's Aid society. The child was the one left in his horae two days alone beside his dead mother, who had been murdered by his father.
